CURRICULUM FOR VALUE ADDED COURSE IN HUMANISM

Through value education we try to develop the social, moral, aesthetic and spiritual sides of a person which are often undermined in formal education.

Co-curricular activities are the second important source for development of values in students with its multifarious programs, which are not only packed with education and instruction, but also provide them with opportunities for self-expression and self-fulfilment.

The students participate in various clubs and association activities, games and sports, excursions and field visits, social activities which provide opportunities to come together in the pursuit of common goals and ideals. Besides the development of creativity and distinctive intellectual, social, and cultural interests, students also learn the value of democratic living, co-operation, tolerance, and responsibility. These activities provide experience in learning values through actual living.
